1. In August and September 1954, the loading of bauxite at Komárom harbor for shipment to the USSR via the Danube amounted to approximately 80,000 tons per month.
 2. As of October 1954, approximately 120 - 130 carloads of bauxite are consigned daily by rail from the bauxite loading ramp in Komárom harbor. Transloading work is in progress day and night in three shifts, each of 100 - 120 men. The work is controlled by a permanent Soviet Commission located at the harbor.
 3. The Soviet authorities are demanding still larger deliveries of bauxite from the Hungarians. As this will affect the load capacity of shipping, a series of new freight barges is to be built exclusively for the transport of bauxite to the USSR.
